The European Center for Kurdish Studies (Europäisches Zentrum für Kurdische Studien, EZKS) - or Berlin Association for promotion of kurdology (Berliner Gesellschaft zur Förderung der Kurdologie e.V., BGFK), as it is also names - is a private research institute founded in 1999. Its office is situated in Emser Str. 26. Its activities are documented on the webpage www.kurdologie.de. There are a lot of projects that are linked to the EZKS, one main project is the publication of the academic series "Beiträge zur Kurdologie" and the interdisciplinary journal "Kurdische Studien". These and several other publications linked to Kurdish studies can be reviewed in the small library in the second floor of the office building. The library can be used easily and without charge in its opening hours: Monday - Friday from 10:00 am to 2:00 pm. You are asked to leave your bag at the entrance desk or stow it in the lockers using 1-Euro-coins as deposit. There is no library card needed. As it is a reference library, you cannot rent out books, you may only read and work there. But you can make copies by coins, costs are 0,10 Euro per page. There is an online catalogue which you can use at the PC-desks in the library and also use outside the library in the free web (http://www.kurdologie.de/opac/index_de.php).
